

IBBK – International Biogas Study Tour 2009

23 – 26 September 2009 – Germany

(as of June 2009)

Tour information

IBBK offers a 4 days study-tour, starting 23 September 2009 in Berlin. The participants of the tour will visit planners of biogas plants, manufacturers of components and biogas plants as well as biogas plants with new or ground-breaking concepts or technology in Germany

The tour will cover the following topics: farm scale biogas plants in codigestion with energy crops, grass, chicken manure, cow manure, pig manure, food and industrial waste; heat utilisation; dry fermentation; biogas upgrading for injection in gas grid or vehicle fuel; communal biowaste digestion; solid biomass feeding; small scale wood gas, digestate treatment etc.

The tour will end on 26 September 2009 in the area of Duisburg close to Düsseldorf and Cologne. On that day will be a optional transfer by train to join the International Biogas Training Course at the University of Hohenheim, starting on 28 September 2009.

The Biogas Study Tour will be conducted in both German and English and includes sight seeing and cultural aspects.
